Snapshot of a Great Year

By LAURA BEARDSLEY, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

From the tallest granite peaks to vast sagebrush steppes, the public lands of the Eastern Sierra need the support of a strong community of friends and stewards to ensure their vitality and sustainability. In this, the seventh edition of Pine Nuts, Friends of the Inyo presents our annual report for 2013. It was an exciting year for all of us here, and we take this opportunity to highlight the contributions of our members, business supporters, partners, board members, and staff who make our work possible.

In 2013, Friends of the Inyo, with the support of members, donors, and partners, provided meaningful opportunities for preservation, exploration, and stewardship of our local public lands. We welcomed groups from throughout the region and across the country on programs and projects from the Inyo Mountains Wilderness to the Jeffrey pine forest. Our stewardship crews continued working with the Inyo National Forest to implement a designated system of motorized routes and trails; and the Mammoth Lakes Trail System Summer of Stewardship programs flourished with six trail days and a season of captivating interpretive tours. In addition to meaningful stewardship programs and inspiring outings, we maintained our involvement with key issues on public lands throughout the region. Most notably, we provided consistent, thoughtful, well-researched comments throughout the initial stages of planning for the new management plan for the Inyo National Forest and worked hard to engage stakeholders in the process.

This report presents a financial snapshot of our programs in 2013. For more information about our work and our accomplishments, please visit friendsoftheinyo.org. On behalf of Friends of the Inyo's Board and staff, thank you for making our preservation, exploration, and stewardship programs a success throughout the Eastern Sierra. Your contributions, in all forms, ensure the resilience and longevity of our wild places.
